Jodi Hirschfield of Jewish Educational Loan Fund Visited JFS and Met with Anne Wainer and Alison Gilreath

JELF & JFS

Did you know that there is an organization which provides interest-free loans for higher education to Jewish students in need? Jewish Educational Loan Fund (JELF) based in Atlanta, GA, serves as the "last dollars" students need for college. Without JELF's loans, these students might otherwise have to take out high interest-bearing loans -- creating a cycle of bad debt for years to come.

JELF partners with JFS to serve the WNC region. Jodi Hirschfield, JELF's Assistant Director of Development recently visited and met with Anne Wainer, JELF Local Administrator and Alison Gilreath, JFS Executive Director to learn more about Asheville and how JELF can best service our community.

JELF has two application periods each year: March 1 – April 30 for the full upcoming school year (fall, spring & summer); and September 1 – 30 for the spring and/or summer terms. For more information about applying for JELF or to make a donation, visit jelf.org or send an email to info@jelf.org. The next application period will be available online on September 1st at jelf.org

Hendersonville Elder Club

Check-in Service

SimplyHome, LLC, is a vendor of enabling technology products for older adults and those with disabilities. They recently announced the debut of the Check-in Service and Responder App for iOS and Android mobile devices. Adult Care Homes

Adult care homes offer an alternative to traditional assisted living. Small adult care homes, sometimes called "adult foster homes," are gaining favor as a less costly, more personal alternative for people who cannot live alone but don't need traditional assisted-living care. Meals, help with bathing and dressing, and transportation to appointments are typically offered, with ample opportunity for independent activity in the community.

Hendersonville Elder Club members are schmoozing and enjoying bagels during their coffee time at Congregation Agudas Israel. Members meet on Wednesdays for socialization, exercise, a kosher lunch and activities. If you know anyone in the Hendersonville or Asheville area that would enjoy the Elder Club please contact Anne Wainer at 828-253-2900.
